An organization of the American Institute of Physics

Talk: Introduction to Deep Space Telecommunications Systems Engineering

Learn about the challenges of designing spacecraft communication systems that are vital for the exploration and navigation of our solar system.

Presented by UWEC Physics & Astronomy alumna Kate Kufahl

Thursday | March 9

4:00 PM – 5:00 PM

Phillips Science Hall, Room 007

The background of the entire image is a long-exposure photograph of a starry night sky. It features numerous curved, concentric star trails in shades of white, blue, and purple, suggesting the Earth's rotation. The trails are most prominent in the upper half of the image and become more sparse towards the bottom.

Learn about the night sky at a
